

Clients

We'd love to brag about all of our clients and tell the war stories about what we've been able to achieve for them. But we can't. As legal professionals bound by client confidentiality and ethical limitations on what we can say about our results, we're cautious in giving out details.

What we can say is that many of our clients came to us first when they needed legal counsel and remain with us 10, 20 and even 30 years later. We have clients who "test drove" us for a limited engagement and then we became their preferred firm for a range of legal services. And we have clients who came to us after seeing our performance on the other end of the negotiating table or the opposite side of the courtroom.

Our long term affinity with people and organizations we are privileged to represent has not only served us well as a firm but is a matter of personal pride for our attorneys and staff alike. Those who graciously allow us to publicize our relationship with them as legal counsel include the following:

REPRESENTATIVE CLIENTS

If they want to brag on us, we don't mind.